Introduction

In 2002, Pacel completed an evaluation of its business model and the potential success in its existing business initiatives. It was determined that the Company should, as part of that review, evaluate other potential business markets that could provide the potential for success. In September 2002, Pacel announced its intention to enter the Professional Employer Organization ("PEO") industry. In addition, the Company plans to provide Administrative Service Organization ("ASO") services. The Company will provide human capital management solutions to small business clients within the United States. Subsequent to December 31, 2002, the Company successfully completed the acquisition of two PEO organizations and one ASO organization and is evaluating additional opportunities with the potential for organic growth in order to secure its position as an industry leader. The Company sees this initiative in these industries as an opportunity to tap into the lucrative small business market in the United States and intends to compliment its activities with information technology services, business consulting and financial services at a future time. The focus of the Company in 2003 and early 2004 will be on its PEO/ASO business unit, integrating is completed and planned acquisitions, developing leading vendor relationships and establishing itself as an industry leader.

Through its PEO/ASO business unit, the Company will market to its clients, typically small to medium-sized businesses with between five and one hundred employees, a broad range of products and services that provide an outsourced solution for the clients' human resources ("HR") needs. The Company's products and services will initially include benefits administration, payroll administration, governmental compliance, risk management, unemployment administration, and health, welfare and retirement benefits. The Company is currently working to establish the necessary national vendor relationships in order to effectively and competitively provide such services to a broad range of clients.

By allowing the management of these small to medium size business clients to focus on the "business of business" rather than complicated and time consuming administrative tasks, the Company, in delivering its services, should be well positioned to improve the efficiency of its clients' businesses and enhancing their ability to be profitable in their chosen marketplace. Additionally, such initiatives as improving the ability to attract and retain talent, improving the planning and management of payroll cash flows and managing employment risks should enhance the success of the Company's clients.

In addition to the PEO/ASO services offered, PACEL's IT Services group engages in the business of software development and delivery. The Company has programmed and supplied a number of COTS and custom developed software products to a variety of clients including local government, major utility companies, NASA, and numerous small-business clients. Examples of these software products include the Visual Writer suite for development and implementation of electronic documents, JDH, a custom developed facilities management software, and ChildWatch, a family friendly program that allows parents to manage a child's online computer use.

The IT Services group is also builds high-quality, computers designed to meet customer-specific requirements. The category of hardware products include rack-mounted systems, Ultraserv Platforms, CT-Server Platforms, TFT-LCD and KVM Subsystems, Single Board Computers (SBC), SBC backplane and fibre channel components. The engineering team is proficient in various operating systems including Windows XP, NT, 2000, LINUX, and DOS and are experienced in Internet connectivity and configuration of network devices.

PEO Opportunity

In 1999 the PEO industry collectively served approximately 3.5 million work site employees in the United States. The target market for the PEO industry are companies with less than 100 employees. According to the United States Small Business Administration (SBA), the nation has over 6 million small businesses, representing over 99% of all businesses. According to the U.S. Census Bureau, small businesses are the fastest growing segment of the U.S. employment and commerce. Small businesses employ nearly one-half of the United States workforce, generating an estimated annual payroll of $1.4 trillion.

Despite their position in the business market, small businesses and emerging growth companies face several major obstacles that impede their opportunity for growth and success. These obstacles include lack of capital, professional management, and other critical operating infrastructure systems. In many sectors, dominated by large multinational competitors, smaller businesses find it difficult to attract financial resources, service providers, and quality employees. Further challenges to the small business and emerging growth companies are regulatory and compliance requirements of federal, state, and local government agencies.

In a PEO relationship, the client transfers certain employment-related risks and liabilities to the Company and retains other risks and liabilities. In this context, the client and the Company are each viewed as and become a "co-employer" of the client's worksite employees. In order to enter into a co-employer relationship, the Company operates as a Professional Employer Organization ("PEO").

As a co-employer, employment-related liabilities are contractually allocated between the Company and the client under a written Professional Services Agreement. Under the Professional Services Agreement, the Company assumes responsibility for and manages the risks associated with each client's worksite employee payroll obligations, including the liability for payment of salaries and wages (including payroll taxes) to each worksite employee and, at the client's option, responsibility for providing group health, welfare and retirement benefits to such individuals. These obligations of the Company are fixed, whether or not the client makes timely payment of the associated service fee. In this regard, it is important to understand that, unlike payroll

Edgar Filing: PACEL CORP - Form 8-K

processing service providers, the Company issues to each of the client's worksite employees Company payroll checks drawn on the Company bank accounts. The Company also reports and remits all required employment information and taxes to the Internal Revenue Service ("IRS") and issues a Federal Form W-2 to each worksite employee under the appropriate Company FEIN. The Company assumes the responsibility for compliance with those employment-related governmental regulations that can be effectively managed away from the client's worksite. In many cases, the Company provides the employee workers' compensation insurance coverage under the Company's insurance policy. The client may elect, or the workers' compensation carrier may require, to retain its own policy for the management of this risk. In those cases, the Company remains heavily involved with safety and risk management to assist the client in controlling risk and potentially reducing the costs of such coverage. The client contractually retains the general day-to-day responsibility to direct, control, hire, terminate and manage each of the client's worksite employees. The worksite employee services are performed for the exclusive benefit of the client's business. The client also remains responsible for compliance with those employment-related governmental regulations that are more closely related to the day-to-day management of worksite employees.

In an ASO relationship, the client retains all employment-related risks and liabilities and the Company provides outsourced solutions to meet the administrative and HR needs of the client.

The Company charges its clients a service fee that is designed to yield a profit to the Company and to cover the cost of certain employment-related taxes, workers' compensation insurance coverage and administrative and field services provided by the Company to the client. The component of the service fee related to administration varies according to the size of the client, the amount and frequency of the payroll payments, whether a PEO or an ASO client and the method of delivery of such payments. In a PEO relationship, the component of the service fee related to workers' compensation and unemployment insurance is based, in part, on the client's historical claims experience. In addition, the client may choose to offer certain health, welfare and retirement benefits to its worksite employees. In addition to the service fee and cost of selected benefit plans, billings to each client also include the wages and other employment related taxes of each worksite employee. The gross billings are invoiced at the time of delivery of each periodic payroll delivered to the client.

Currently, the Company provides workers' compensation insurance coverage for its worksite employees through a variety of vendor arrangements. It's two acquired PEO business units have workers' compensation programs in place for the coverage of their respective worksite employees. The third acquisition is an ASO and, accordingly, offers no workers' compensation coverage, although it may assist the client in the management of its existing carrier relationship. The Company is currently in talks with three carriers in order to secure a national workers' compensation plan for all of its recent and planned PEO acquisitions. Once such a program has been developed, the Company will pay the premiums for this coverage and pass along to its clients some or all of the costs attributable to the coverage for their respective worksite employees. The Company does not act as an insurance company. However, as part of a recent acquisition and in an effort to manage its workers' compensation and benefit programs in 2003, the Company acquired a wholly owned North Carolina based insurance company. The Company does assume certain workers' compensation risk as a result of providing its services.

The Company has an incentive to minimize its workers' compensation and unemployment tax costs because the Company bears the risk that its actual costs will exceed those billed to clients, and conversely, the Company profits on these components of its service offerings in the event that it effectively manages such costs.

The Company's purchase of BeneCorp, Asmara and MRG establishes regional presences in Texas, North Carolina, Florida and California for PACEL and represents a major step toward realizing the opportunities that have been identified in the PEO industry.
