Partner Communications Co. Ltd.

Partner Communications Co. Ltd.

Affirmed Corporate Credit Rating ilA+/Stable

Rationale

Business Risk

Continuous exposure to the characteristics of the Israeli communication market, including changes in regulation and intense competition.

Retaining a leading position in the mobile segment.

Continuous decrease in operating margins.

Diversified activity in various communication segments and entry into the TV market

Financial Risk

Consistently sound financial risk profile and low leverage.

Decrease in free cash flow.

"Adequate" liquidity.

Outlook: Stable

The stable outlook reflects our assessment that in the next 12 months, Partner will maintain a financial policy supporting leverage levels and coverage ratios commensurate with the current rating, i.e. adjusted debt/EBITDA ratio of 3.0x-4.0x and EBITDA margin of 20%-30%. We also estimate that the Company will maintain a balance between liquidity and investments while generating positive free cash flows.

Downside Scenario

We may consider a negative rating action if the company's liquidity profile or business risk profile weaken, e.g. as a result of significant deterioration in its operating measures and increasing volatility in the communication market. Furthermore, a negative rating would be possible if Partner's operational performance deteriorates, such that its EBITDA margin drops below 20%, and the Company fails to take active steps to improve it. We may also consider a negative rating action if the Company's adjusted debt/EBITDA exceeds 4.0x.

Upside Scenario

A positive rating action is possible if the company maintains its conservative financial policy over time while the market stabilizes and its operational profitability increases. In addition, we may consider a positive rating action should the company consistently present an adjusted debt/EBITDA ratio of up to 3.0x and an EBITDA margin exceeding 30%.

Partner Communications Co. Ltd.

Base-Case Scenario

In our base-case scenario we assume that revenues will continue to decline in 2018, among other things due to continued decrease in mobile revenues following Xfone's entry. This decrease will be mitigated by an increase in revenues from two activities, internet (both through the wholesale market and on optic fibers) and TV. We estimate that volatility in the mobile market will continue into 2019, but will be mitigated by expected growth in TV and internet revenues.

We believe the TV activity adversely affects the Company's EBITDA in the initial operation period, due to content and marketing expenses. This adverse effect will be mitigated by the increase in TV revenues and in market share until reaching the break-even point and profit. We believe penetration into the TV market is crucial for the Company in order to preserve its status in the communication market and decrease its dependence on mobile activity. We expect the Company's free cash flow to continue decreasing in the medium term, but to remain positive at about NIS 300-500 million.

Principal Assumptions Decrease in revenues in 2018 and expected volatility afterwards.	Key Metrics*	2017	A 2018E	2019E
Annual capital expenditures (capex) of about NIS 400 million in 2018-2019.	EBITDA margin*	28.4%	% 23%-25%	%23%-25%

Business Risk

Decrease in operating margin due to intense competition and entry into the TV market; maintaining a competitive position
We believe that the company's business risk profile is supported by the following factors:
Familiarity with the communication market.
Persisting leading market position.
Diversified operations.
On the other hand, we believe the company's business risk profile is limited by the following factors:
Exposure to the characteristics of the Israeli communication market, including tight regulation, intense competition in most segments and continuous instability, as evidenced by the entry of a new cellular operator (Xfone) having reinstated the former situation in the cellular market of decreasing ARPU (average revenue per user) and high churn rates. Partner's ARPU decreased to NIS 58 in the first quarter of 2018 compared with NIS 61 in the first quarter of 2017. In addition, although Partner's churn rate decreased to 8.8% in the first quarter of 2018 from 9.8% in the first quarter of 2017, we still consider this rate to be high.
www.maalot.co.il August 13, 2018 3

Partner Communications Co. Ltd.
Decrease in operating margin, expected to somewhat accelerate with our assessment of larger expenditures on content in the initial period of operation in the TV market.
Decrease in free operating cash flows in light of required infrastructure investments to operate the Company's fiber-optic network and investments in set top boxes for the TV market.
We believe the Company's entry into the TV market in 2017 to be supportive of its long-term operation, by expanding the Company's portfolio and its customer base as it allows the company to offer triple packages. Nevertheless, entry into this market requires large investments on set top boxes, infrastructure, marketing and sales, as well as content. Although Partner completed most of the infrastructure work in 2016, we believe it faces additional investments as it expands its operations in this market, and that content-related investments are critical and costly and the company will have little discretion to reduce them. In 2017 the Company also started investing in the deployment of a fiber-optic network in order to provide faster internet capabilities than those currently offered in the market. This move and its marketing require large investments which may only yield returns in the medium- to long term.
Financial Risk
Good coverage ratios compared to peers; large investment needs
We believe that the company's financial risk profile is supported by the following factors:
Continuous decrease in financial debt.
Good coverage and leverage ratios compared to peers.
"Adequate" liquidity underpinned by cash balance and cash flow generation.

Good access to credit sources.

These supporting factors are partly mitigated by our assessment of a decrease in free cash flow generation due to large investment needs in the Company's TV activity and for internet infrastructure through fiber optics.

In the 12 months ended in March 2018, the Company presented an adjusted debt to EBITDA ratio of 1.8x, compared with 1.9x at year-end 2017 and 3.4x in 2016. The deleveraging in 2017 was partly due to a material decrease in debt and to an equity issuance, as well as to the effect of IFRS 15 implementation. Despite the expected investments, we estimate that the Company will maintain an adjusted debt to EBITDA ratio of 2.0x-3.0x in the upcoming year. In 2017, the Company's free cash flow (after deduction of capital expenditures) was about NIS 635 million, compared with about NIS 870 million in 2016. We estimate that this decrease will continue, and that the Company's free cash flow in the next two years will be NIS 300 million – NIS 500 million.

Liquidity: Adequate

The company's liquidity is "adequate", according to our criteria. We estimate that the company's sources to uses ratio in the 12 months beginning on April 1, 2018 will exceed 1.2x. This assessment is mainly based on the current cash balance, good cash flow generation and proactive liquidity policy. The company's good access to a variety of financing sources in the local capital market contributes to its liquidity assessment.

Recovery Analysis
Key analytical factors
Following the initial implementation of our recovery rating criteria for corporate issuers, we are examining the recovery expectations of the various bond series in the case of a hypothetical default.
We are assigning Partner's bond series (Series C,D,F) an 'ilA+' rating, identical to the issuer rating. The recovery rating for these series is '3'.
Our recovery expectations are constrained to the 50%-70% range despite the simplified waterfall, due to our assessment that the Company will replace unsecured debt with secured or senior debt.
Simulated default assumptions
Hypothetic year of default: 2023
A recession in the Israeli economy will lead to a decrease in consumption, to an increase in churn rates and to increased competition in most segments, adversely affecting the Company's cash flows and liquidity, such that it is unable to meet its debt service payments.
As one of the Israeli communication market leaders, the Company will continue operating as a going concern, and undergo reorganization.
Simplified waterfall
Emergence EBITDA: about NIS 235 million
EBITDA multiple: 6.0x
Enterprise value as going concern: about NIS 1,405 million

Partner Communications Co. Ltd.

Net value available to unsecured creditors: about NIS 1,335 million

Unsecured debt claims: about NIS 1,040 million

Unsecured debt recovery expectation: 50%-70% (constrained as noted above)

Unsecured debt recover rating (1 to 6): 3

Reconciliation

In order to create a basis for comparison with other rated companies, we adjust the data reported in the company's financial statements which we use to calculate coverage ratios. The main adjustments we made on Partner Communications Co. Ltd.'s 2017 consolidated data are:

Discounting long-term leases and adding them to reported debt, about NIS 470 million; increasing EBITDA by NIS 145 million and interest expenses by about NIS 35 million. These adjustments reflect annual rental payments and interest and depreciation components calculated from future rent payments discounted into financial debt.

Adjusting financial debt for postretirement benefit obligations – adding about NIS 30 million.

Adjusting financial debt for litigation – addition about NIS 30 million.

Deducting about NIS 760 million in surplus cash from reported financial debt.
