Item 2.02 Results of Operations and Financial Condition.

The information set forth below under Item 7.01 Regulation FD Disclosure is incorporated herein by reference.

The information in this Item 2.02 is being furnished and shall not be deemed filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission or otherwise incorporated by reference into any registration statement or other document filed pursuant to the Securities Act of 1933, as amended, or the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, as amended.

Item 7.01 Regulation FD Disclosure.

Realogy Corporation (the Company or Realogy) today announced that preliminary first quarter results are expected to exceed forecast, and the Company reiterated full-year 2007 EBITDA guidance at or above guidance that was previously disclosed on February 23, 2007.

In affirming guidance for full-year 2007, Realogy believes that the following recent industry indicators (including monthly existing home sales and its two key leading indicators, Housing Affordability Index and Inventory of Existing Homes) point to the possibility that the residential real estate market is beginning to stabilize:

On March 23, 2007, the National Association of Realtors (NAR) announced that February 2007 existing home sales rose 3.9 percent over January 2007 on a seasonally adjusted basis. This was the largest monthly increase in three years. This also represented the fourth time out of the past five months that existing home sales increased on a month-over-month basis. On a year-over-year basis, February 2007 existing home sales declined 3.6 percent over February 2006, representing the lowest decline in 11 months and the fifth consecutive month that the rate of decline has slowed on a year-over-year basis.

NAR also reported that its Housing Affordability Index was 114.8 for February 2007, which was within one percent of the prior month (115.9 for January 2007), the highest monthly level reported since a figure of 111.7 in May 2005. The Housing Affordability Index has markedly increased from its low of 99.6 in July 2006 to its current level of 114.8.

NAR also reported that Inventory of Existing Homes was stable at 6.7 months supply for February 2007 versus the January 2007 report of 6.6 months and compared to the recent peak of 7.4 months supply in October 2006.

On April 3, 2007, NAR released its Pending Home Sales Index, which rose 0.7 percent in February 2007. This forward-looking index reflects an increase in signed contracts to buy previously owned homes versus the previous report.

In addition, on March 30, 2007, the Bureau of Economic Analysis released that Personal Income increased $65.4 billion, or 0.6 percent, in February 2007, another positive economic development. During the last 12 months, Personal Income has increased by 5.3 percent. The Company believes that income growth supports the strong gains it has seen in the Housing Affordability Index.

The information contained in this Item 7.01 is being furnished and shall not be deemed filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission or otherwise incorporated by reference into any registration statement or other document filed pursuant to the Securities Act of 1933, as amended, or the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, as amended.

This Current Report on Form 8-K includes certain forward-looking, non-GAAP financial measures as defined under SEC rules.
