Dear Sirs,

Following our decision to lift the customary standstill provision and allow the Royal Bank of Scotland, Grupo Santander and Fortis (the Consortium) to carry out due diligence, ABN AMRO continues to seek clarification on some fundamental aspects of your indicative proposal.

Edgar Filing: ABN AMRO HOLDING N V - Form 425

In order to assess any offer that includes a share component, the Management and Supervisory Boards of ABN AMRO need to be clear on the likely future value of those shares and be satisfied about the nature and extent of any financial, operational and regulatory issues which are likely to either increase the closing risk of any offer, or impact ABN AMRO shareholders going forward. In addition, in respect of the proposed substantial cash component, ABN AMRO should be reasonably satisfied with the certainty of funding and the sources thereof.

Specifically, we respectfully request answers to the following important questions by return:

How will the Consortium fund approximately €50 billion in cash? Are Royal Bank of Scotland and its shareholders going to underwrite this entire amount or will there be interdependency on Grupo Santander and Fortis disposing of existing assets and undertaking substantial capital raising? Is any offer going to be subject to a financing condition and therefore a material closing risk? What financing arrangements are in place for an offer by the Consortium? What financing is being provided by each member of the Consortium and are you funding, underwriting or subsidising, each other? In any case ABN AMRO must be able to assess both the execution risk and conditionality of the financing, and also the economic impact on any share component that may be offered.

How will the risks to capital, clients and employees be managed in any break-up of ABN AMRO? What discussions have you had with the regulators and works councils on these issues?

How will the revenues, expenses, capital and group debt (including the derivative portfolio) of ABN AMRO be divided by the Consortium? How can regulators, debt holders and rating agencies be appropriately reassured, and what discussions and comfort have you had on these issues, to date?

How will the capital gains tax, stranded costs and restructuring charges (particularly in North America and Brazil) be borne by the Consortium members? What will be the exposure of ABN AMRO shareholders to these significant costs in any share component? ABN AMRO has acted in a clear and transparent manner: we have removed the stand-still requirement in order to allow you progress due diligence, we have provided the Consortium with the same information as was available to Barclays, and we have published details of agreements into which we have entered. We would respectfully request that the Consortium commit themselves to acting in a similarly transparent manner and agree to furnish full details of any legally binding arrangements, agreements or guarantees that they have signed between them, or with third parties, with respect to reallocation of capital or the division or disposal of assets or employees of ABN AMRO and with respect to any current or future shareholding in ABN AMRO?

The Management and Supervisory Boards of ABN AMRO are keen to pursue discussions on a constructive basis and request that the Consortium addresses these questions as a matter of urgency.

We look forward to a response from the Consortium.

Yours sincerely,
