Subject: Update on Merger

Dear AXIS Colleagues,

PartnerRe announced today that its Board of Directors plans to engage in discussions with EXOR S.p.A. to determine whether EXOR's proposal to acquire PartnerRe can be improved. This is consistent with the Board's fiduciary duty to evaluate and review strategic options for the benefit of the Company and its shareholders.

Importantly, the Board of PartnerRe has publicly stated that it has not changed its recommendation with respect to, and continues to support, the pending merger with AXIS Capital. Likewise, AXIS remains committed to its amalgamation with PartnerRe and will reiterate that publicly.

The amalgamation with PartnerRe is still in both companies' best interests as it combines two world class organizations to create a powerhouse within the industry. We believe it will deliver significant and superior value to all stakeholders of both AXIS and PartnerRe. Certainly, we have received very positive feedback from our clients, brokers, shareholders and employees.

Whatever happens, AXIS has a bright future. We are a great company on our own, and were successfully pursuing our own standalone strategy when PartnerRe approached us with the proposed merger. We agreed to the merger because it accelerated our strategy, and we intend to work on making it happen. But if it doesn't, we are still the same strong company we were before we announced the merger, and if PartnerRe sells to another party we expect to receive a $280 million break-up fee that would increase our book value by approximately 5%.

I realize that these continued distractions do nothing to ease what is already an uncertain environment. Mergers of this kind, between two strong, robust and successful independent companies, are by their nature incredibly complex even without having to deflect unsuitable acquisition proposals by a third party. I wrote to you earlier this month congratulating you on your professionalism and urging you to carry on with our day-to-day excellence. I write you now to ask you to continue to do so. Nothing about our situation has changed.

We are making great strides with the integration work-streams. With this latest development, we will re-prioritize integration planning work and specific guidance in this regard will be provided to integration teams this week.

In the meantime, please feel free to reach out to your managers or to me with immediate questions and concerns regarding the amalgamation, and keep up the excellent work.

In the coming days and weeks you will hear more from us regarding next steps. Certainly, the noise in the media is likely to increase and please remember that much of what you hear is exactly that.

I will be hosting an informational call at 11 AM Eastern to discuss this matter further. We encourage you to join your colleagues in dialing in from conference rooms and share in this news as a group. Please use the dial-in details below.
