Breeden Partners Calls on H&R Block to Get Back to Basics and Stop the Bleeding at Option One

Breeden Partners Outlines Program to Stop Long Decline in Value

Greenwich, CT., August 9, 2007. Breeden Capital Management LLC, a Greenwich, CT., based investment fund manager, announced today its plan to create value for H&R Block.

Richard C. Breeden, Chairman and Chief Executive Officer of Breeden Capital Management LLC, said, "After five years of persistent inferior performance, H&R Block's Board needs a wake-up call from shareholders, which we intend to deliver. We have the resources, the experience and the determination to represent shareholders effectively, and to help the Board consider the Company's performance issues. This is a critical time for the Company, and the board must urgently attend to the business of setting meaningful performance targets for management that are directly tied to shareholder returns and holding management accountable for achieving those targets. As members of the Board, we will support tried and true principles for improving governance and strengthening the Board's oversight role in many areas. Shareholders need a board that is not dominated by management or inhibited by prior decisions or other factors from providing the effective oversight that the Company needs."

Breeden Partners Program to Enhance Value at H&R Block

Our primary focus is to provide a strong shareholder voice in the boardroom. Based on our experience, we believe that the new board should consider several strategic options. Each of these has the potential to improve shareholder returns. Among the ideas we are proposing are:

Stop the bleeding at Option One. The Company's sub-prime mortgage lender reported losses of nearly $1 billion during the year ended April 30, 2007. The Company has not disclosed what additional losses may have occurred since then, and we are concerned about the levels of cash being infused into this unit. We believe the Company and the Board should find a strategy to curtail further growth in sub-prime exposure and to permit prompt exit from Option One with the lowest possible net losses.

Consider divestiture of H&R Block Bank. This would eliminate any restrictions on the ability to repurchase shares when and as most beneficial to shareholders. Owning the Bank in effect means the company has surrendered the right to develop the most efficient capital structure.

Implement a more efficient capital structure to lower cost of capital; we believe the highest and best use of shareholder capital today is stock buybacks.

Consider the divestiture of the securities brokerage business. This business lacks critical mass and we see no reasonable likelihood that it will begin generating acceptable returns since it has been unable to do so after eight years of effort.

Focus on expanding margins and maximizing cash flow in tax-related businesses where the company earns the highest ROIC and enjoys the most significant competitive advantage

Explore re-franchising opportunities for company owned stores

Establish stringent performance goals and standards to hold senior management accountable for operational performance and capital allocation

These and other steps need to be taken to begin to reverse the long decline in performance at H&R Block. Our program to enhance value includes both changes in the business, and governance reforms to reintroduce into the company values whose importance appears to have been overlooked in recent years.
